ABOUT

THE COURSE

Foundation Course is a Mentorship Program that aims at covering all the important Theoretical and Analytical aspects of the Sociology syllabus in a theme-based approach. As per the Theme-based Approach, all important themes from the syllabus are identified and all the related topics to the theme from both Paper I and Paper II are simultaneously covered. The theme-based approach facilitates better Conceptual Understanding and Interlinking. We don't merely focus on teaching sociology but rather mentoring the candidates for qualifying the Civil Services Examination. While Daily Verbal Tests facilitate Conceptual Clarity and Conceptual Interlinking, Regular Answer-Writing Practice, through Class Tests, enhances Correct Articulation Skill of candidates. During the course, Previously Asked Questions on the respective topics are also discussed. You may attend two Demo Classes. If you develop an interest in sociology and like our teaching pedagogy, then, you may think of joining the course.

Important:

I strongly suggest that candidates preparing for Civil Services Examination must follow Theme-based Approach whereby one should identify the major theme that underlies a given topic and runs through several other related sub-topics in both Paper I and Paper II. I often tell civil services aspirants to prepare the sociology syllabus in a wholesome manner.

In other words, one should prepare both Paper I and Paper II in an integrated manner.

In Paper I, which is mainly about western sociology, candidates must try to quote example from Indian context. Similarly, in Paper II, which is basically about Indian sociology, candidates must try to substantiate their answers with the help of theoretical arguments from Paper I. Thus, the strategy to score better in Civil Services Examination with Sociology optional is to Indianize Paper I and Westernize Paper II.

Thus, following a theme-based approach you would not only realize the depth of understanding that is expected from candidates at this examination but it would also keep you focused throughout your preparation. Please note that the theme-based approach would help you develop Mental Framework of the entire syllabus. Further, once you are confident that you have understood the broader dimensions of the theme then it would also resist your temptation to collect more and more study material on the same topic. Thus, saving you both time as well as energy. You will learn this art as we proceed with the syllabus in the Foundation Course.

Hence, while preparing the topic on Stratification and Mobility, candidates must also prepare related topics from Paper II at the same time. This would facilitate better conceptual understanding and interlinking which would further enhance sociological articulation while writings answers in the Mains Examination.

Related Topics on the Theme of Social Stratification from Paper II are as follows:

Dear Candidate, as per theme-based approach, please try to link the topics of Paper I with those of Paper II. This will not only facilitate a comprehensive understanding of the given topic but also enhance your analytical and articulation skills.

Paper I. Topic 5. Stratification and Mobility

Paper II. C. (vii). (b) Poverty, Deprivation and Inequalities

Dear Candidates, on the basis of my personal experience as well as that of toppers, I can confidently say that this examination is less about content and more about analysis, both comparative as well as contemporary. That's why in light of the changing pattern of the Civil Services Examination, I always suggest my students to focus on Conceptual Understanding and Conceptual Interlinking. But, equally important is to understand and express the Contemporary Relevance of the concepts and theories asked in the question. So, whatever concepts or theories you study in the syllabus, you must also try to relate them with the contemporary society and changes therein.

Last, but not the least, Write Relevantly and Sociologically. It is the most critical stage of all. As I mentioned in the beginning that no matter how much you might have studied and what all sources you might have referred, ultimately it is your answer sheet that determines your destiny. Thus, your written answer must be a perfect blend of conceptual clarity, contemporary analysis and sociological language. More importantly, such an answer needs to be produced on paper within the Time-and-Word Limit.

Dear Candidate, ultimately, you get only those 3 hours to convince the examiner that how dedicated you are about Civil Services and what importance does it carry in your life. The Dialectical Approach to answer writing in sociology (that we teach in our classes and test series) would make sure that your sincere efforts find a reflection in your answers. So along with working hard (Hard Work), we also need to work smartly (Smart Work). Please follow the instructions sincerely.

Best Wishes
